Ball, Queen, Game Winter Weekend

GW'S HOMECOMING Winter Weekend festivities will be capped Saturday with a basketball game, crowning of the Homecoming Queen and the Homecoming Ball.

The opening Southern Conference game of the winter will pit the Colonials against Virginia Military Academy at the Ft. Myer gym at 2 p.m. At half time, the Homecoming Queen will be crowned.

The activities will end Saturday night with the Homecoming Ball at the Sheraton Park Hotel. Despite dinner, dancing, cocktails and a play, the $17 per couple tickets have not been selling well. Less than 75 were purchased by yesterday afternoon.

Tonight's opening activities include a play, "Mother Courage and Her Children," at 8:30 p.m. at the Union United Methodist Church, 814 20th St. The play will be repeated on Friday evening at the same time, and a 2:30 matinee is scheduled for Saturday.

Also slated for tonight is an optional black tie art exhibition at the Dimock Gallery in the basement of Lisner at 7 p.m. The Program Board will also present its Thursday night movie, "Cat Ballou," in Building H at 7:30 and 10 p.m.

A carnival behind the library with a ferris wheel and merry-go-round will highlight Friday's activities. A TGIF dance in the Student Union will follow. An afternoon-long ice sculpturing contest will be conducted, with ice available at the Program Board Office, Building A.

At 7 p.m. a pep rally will be held behind the library, with basketball coach Wayne Dobbs lighting the University Christmas tree. A dance in the gym, with two bands and free refreshments, will begin at 8 p.m.

Rep. Clark, Mazloff Clash During 'Movement' Debate

by Mark Nadler

Hatchet Staff Writer

INTERRUPTED NUMEROUS TIMES by both heckling and enthusiastic applause, the Program Board's Monday night Vietnam debate developed into a highly emotional confrontation between supporters and critics of the Administration's war policies.

The panel discussion, titled "The Movement: The Vocal Minority vs. the Silent Majority," was highlighted by the presence of a "hawkish" Congressman and an antiwar lawmaker. About 250 students attended the Lisner Auditorium debate.

Speaking out against the war were Rep. Edward Koch (D-NY) and Mike Mazloff, co-chairman of the GW Moratorium Committee, while Rep. Frank Clark (D-Pa.) and GW Young Americans for Freedom President Ed Grebow presented the Administration's view of the Vietnam situation.

Professors Franz Michael and Hugh LeBlanc began the debate and provided observations on more general topics of foreign policy and domestic politics.

By the time the panel members had concluded their opening remarks, it became apparent that the discussion would take the form of a confrontation between Rep. Clark and Mazloff, with the audience taking an active role.

Rep. Clark's opening statement: "I am an American first, and a Democrat second," drew a tremendous round of somewhat derisive applause, and a cry of "Right on!" from one of the spectators.

Clark went on to tell the audience that "we of the Silent Majority have just about had it (with anti-war protestors)."

The Congressman's evaluation of the November anti-war activities in Washington was centered around the allegation that "11,500 windows were broken." He referred to the "churning, chaotic mobs" who are trying to affect policy, while "the American people feel a deep moral commitment to the people of South Vietnam."

Clark suggested that the Supreme Court draw up a nationwide referendum on the war, and that the question be put clearly to the American public. At this point, a member of the audience shouted "Who controls the press?" Clark told the heckler: "Shut your big trap!"

Mazloff, who had an easier time with the audience, explained the goals of the New Left in America. He said that the first need is "to stop the Vietnam war and racism in America." Mazloff stated that the main thrust of the second goal is to eliminate "not just those problems themselves, but the things that cause those problems."

The Mobe leader followed up his initial remarks with an attack on "reformers." In response to remarks by Rep. Koch, Mazloff told the audience "You don't talk about reforming systems

Your Number's Up Or, Up Your Number

THANKSGIVING VACATION, basketball and even final exams seemed far from the conversations of dazed male students wandering about GW's concrete campus Tuesday afternoon.

What students were invariably discussing, however, was how they or their friends fared in the nation's first draft lottery since 1940.

For those students lucky enough to have their birth dates among the last 122 pulled from that glass jar in the National Selective Service Headquarters at 1724 F St. N.W., the draft was no longer an Orwellian specter haunting their future.

For others, those whose birthdays were placed in one of the first 122 spots on the big board listing the order of call, the harsh reality of Mylai seemed no further away than the expiration of a college deferment.

But whether their numbers were high, low or in between, few, if any, students were untouched by Monday night's drawing.

"My girl friend called me up and told me that I was number 6," said John Galenski, a junior born on Sept. 6, 1949. "I automatically began to think, 'how do I get out of it?'"

"I'm in perfect shape," he mused as he sat in the Cherry Tree office. "I'm not leaving the country, but I want to think of some way out of it. The trouble with being number 6 is that there's no doubt now."

There was also no doubt for Tom Schade, a senior born on May 2, 1949. May 2 was the 298th date to be posted on the board, virtually assuring Schade that he will never be drafted.

Being a 298 not only left Schade doubt free, it also freed him from having to make a personally momentous decision. For Schade's 23 year old brother is currently awaiting trial on a charge of draft evasion, and the GW senior was ready to follow his brother to jail.

"I was planning to refuse induction," he said as he sat talking with about five other students in the UCF office late in the afternoon, "but now I'll have to think of something else to do. But I get the greatest kick," he said, "out of the fact that David Eisenhower is 30." He made a face and laughed, adding, "everybody should wear his number on his back."

For girls who like to fuss without any bother

There's a difference between fussing and bothering.

Fussing is doing something you like.

And bothering is doing something you don't like.

The Norelco Home Beauty Salon is for girls who love to fuss about the way they look.

There are 10 attachments to fuss with. You can get a fast, close, very gentle shave on your legs and your underarms. Or trim the stray ends of your hairdo. Then change attachments and fuss a little with your fingernails.

Change again, and you can massage your scalp. Or your face. Or neck. Even apply a facial cream to your face.

The Home Beauty Salon. If you love to fuss, it's no bother. And neither is the Lady Norelco. It shaves your legs fast and close and comfortably. Underarms, too.

And its shape was made just for you. Sleek, modern, and attractive. Be fussy. Choose Norelco.

Norelco you can't get any closer.

BSU Changes Name To Aid D.C. Blacks

IN A MOVE designed to strengthen their ties with area Negroes, GW's Black Student's Union has changed its name to the Black People's Union (BPU).

The action was taken, according to a BPU statement released this week, to abolish "class division." Reflecting recent off-campus involvement, the group will be "dedicated to serving the Black community."

"Our energies must not be confined to the problems of students alone," the statement continued. The group pledged to end "all separation between the educated Blacks and the community from which they come."

The announcement was coupled with a stinging commentary on the group's already-strained relationship with the University Administration. "If GW will not serve the Black community," the group said, "it must be replaced with a structure that will."

Despite increased inner-city work by the BPU, the organization has not abandoned its drive to increase aid-assisted black enrollment. "Our constant concern," the statement asserted, "is to see GW change its present relationship to the needs of our community."

The controversial Educational Opportunity Program (EOP), which received much of its impetus from the old BSU, has not, according to BPU, "met the minimal objectives" it originally set.

Last spring's hoped-for enrollment of 100 EOP-supported blacks fell short of expectations, with only 45 admitted.

BSU President Tim Ashanti charged this summer that GW was not "creative in minority affairs" and said that the University was "dragging its feet in recruitment of inner-city students."

EOP Director Bill Trent, a 25-year-old Negro, said in late August that the disappointing number of incoming blacks was partly due to the late recruitment effort, difficulty in establishing an organized work force, and lack of funds.

A major point of contention between BPU members and school officials is the acceptance of "special risk students." None were admitted to GW this fall, the group charged, causing the rejected applicants to "remain in the Black community growing frustrated and angered at the opportunities they can never attain."

The EOP program is failing, the group charged, because "for the program to be at least effective, the Blacks educated at GW must be directed to the Black community. It has become most clear that the University is incapable of giving Blacks the necessary direction."

Historic Club Folds

GW to Acquire F St. Club

THE EXCLUSIVE F Street Club, long a Foggy Bottom center for Washington celebrities, will soon be closed, according to Mrs. Laura Gross, 77, who founded the club during the Depression. She announced Tuesday that it will not continue after her death, and may close much sooner.

Closing the club will mean adding to GW's property. American University, which had contracted with Mrs. Gross to acquire the club's quarters after her death, has moved out of this area entirely, transferring its holdings to GW.

The University has already acquired from A.U. several buildings at the east end of the 1900 block of F St., buildings which served as headquarters for the GW Mobilization Committee last month. The Club, at 1925 F, is between these and 20th St.

GW will treat the Club building as part of a larger unit which comprises all the lots on the block included in the 1966 agreement with A.U. According to University Vice President Henry Herzog, there are no specific plans for using the land because it is not known just when GW will acquire it.

But time is clearly running out for the Club, which has hosted such notables as former President Lyndon Johnson and ex-Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas. No attempt will be made, Mrs. Gross explained, to continue operations at a new address if the F St. building is sold before her death.

THE F STREET CLUB, sight of many Washington social gatherings, will soon be closed. The property, at the corner of 20th and F Sts., belongs to GW.

Students React to Lottery

One student not overly anxious to wear his number on his back was John Lawrence, who came into the UCF office while Schade was talking. The 20-year-old junior had the misfortune to be born on February 14. For most people, February 14 means Valentines day. For Lawrence, it means being number 4 in the order of call.

"I don't even really care," he said as he sat down and propped his feet up on a low table. "I heard I was number 4, went into a little shock, called home and listened to my mother cry, and then forgot about it and had a great evening."

"It doesn't change my plans," interjected GW Mobe leader Mike Mazloff, a number 58 who sat in the office, "I'm still getting a heavy overcoat."

"Hey, I'll go with you," said Lawrence, "we can go out to Korvette's." The two of them kidded back and forth about going to Canada.

"All the lottery does," said Mark Bluver, another Mobe leader who was sitting in the crowded pamphlet-strewn office, "is heighten the absurdity" of the draft.

Whether the draft is serious or absurd is now immaterial for Bluver. Born on a May 28th, Bluver is a number 308, well within the bottom third of the poll and far removed from the threat of induction.

"Some fat old man with his hand in a fishbowl decides who's going to live and who's going to die," he said, echoing the melodramatic fatalism of many GW students Tuesday.

"It just heightens the absurdity," said Lawrence, repeating Bluver's earlier remark.

Mazloff nudged the conversation into a lighter vein.

"We figure for the next Moratorium," he joked, "we'll have a draft lottery for the Viet Cong." Everyone in the room began to laugh.

"But who'll we draft?" asked Lawrence.

"Tricia Nixon, Lloyd Elliott, people like that," replied Mazloff, grinning evilly.

The laughter in the office drifted into the late afternoon fall dusk outside on G Street. But there was no laughter at the corner of 21st and G where Art Lesenger stood hawking the Washington Free Press and Quicksilver Times.

Born on June 23, 1948, Lesenger had drawn a 109, 13 numbers within the prime group.

"They can play the numbers game," he said, "they can pull all the numbers out of a hat. But when it comes time ... what can I say?" He shrugged his shoulders.

"A lot of people are uptight," said Lesenger, who no longer holds a student deferment. "They're running around saying 'what number are you,' but what's the difference? They're still students. They're still draft exempt. There's no pressure. It's an illusion."

"I'm not going," he said. "There's just no way." He shivered, pulled his army surplus jacket more tightly about his chest, and returned to selling his papers.

WRGW Sets Up Thurston Studio For Scholarship

WRGW, the campus radio station, will set up studios in the formal lounge of Thurston Hall during Winter Weekend for its WRGW-L. Poe Leggett Memorial Scholarship Fund Drive. Started in 1967, the fund, named for the late chairman of the Speech and Drama Department, is the first student-run University scholarship drive.

The station will start broadcasting tonight at 7 p.m. from Superdorm and continue whenever the dorm is open until midnight Sunday. Special programming during the weekend will include the GW-VMI basketball game live from Fort Myer, and a play-by-play account of Superdorm lobby on Saturday night.

Posters, albums, and over 1,000 45rpm records, will be given away in return for contributions to the fund. Air time will also be sold to any student wanting to talk, with proceeds going to the fund.

Contributions will also be solicited at the basketball game and in the dormitories the station serves. The station's goal is a full semester tuition grant.

PROTECTIVE LIFE Has Done A Lot Of Graduate Study

And we've come up with some pretty important information. For example, we know that college men are in the best health period of their lives, that they have a greater life expectancy, and that they will command greater incomes in less hazardous occupations than most people. And because of this, we've designed a special life insurance-savings plan especially for college men. It's called the Protective Life College Senior Plan, and offers exceptional benefits at preferred rates. Coverage includes accidental death, disability, and a protected insurability benefit. The College Senior Plan has no war exclusion clause, offers full aviation coverage, and becomes completely paid up at normal retirement age. Also, premium deposits may be deferred until earnings increase.

Hearing Committee Denies Appeal from Karen Haber

by Sue McMenamin
Hatchet Staff Writer

G W 's HEARING COMMITTEE on Student Affairs last week denied an appeal from Karen Haber to remove from her records a letter of reprimand for her actions during the Maury Hall takeover.

After the hearing held November 20, eight of the 11 members decided to affirm a May judgment by Vice-President for Student Affairs William P. Smith.

The majority opinion was that there was no undue delay in the commencement of the appellate proceedings and that the procedural aspects of Miss Haber's hearing before Smith were "essentially fair."

The majority also stated that there was sufficient evidence in the record of those proceedings for them to believe that Miss Haber unlawfully entered Maury Hall the night of April 23, 1969.

Two minority opinions were expressed by the remaining three committee members. Tara Connell and David Dan stated that Smith's decision to reprimand Miss Haber should be reversed because they questioned the credibility of the one witness who identified Miss Haber at the hearing last May.

Although they agreed with the majority opinion of the Committee on the procedural points, Miss Connell and Dan felt that that witness' testimony was not the "preponderance of evidence" that the ground rules of the May hearing required the University to produce.

Prof. P.H. Sawitz said that although he deplored the actions of those students and outsiders during the Maury Hall takeover and would welcome any measures that would lead to their identification and punishment, he believed the decision made by Smith should be reversed.

However, Sawitz went on to state that "punishment of those whose main distinction is that they happen to be identified, with more or less credibility, as being among the many present in Maury Hall during that night can no more satisfy my sense of justice than a procedure that picked the ones to be punished by a lottery."

Miss Haber was given the option of appealing the Hearing Committee's decision to University President Lloyd H. Elliott, but since she did not the Committee's decision is final.

Miss Haber's defense was conducted by her father, who also appeared with her at the private hearing before Smith.

Operations Board Sets Job Application Deadline

THE UNIVERSITY CENTER Operations Board met Wednesday to discuss the hiring of students for Center jobs and the formulation of regulations for Center operations.

The Board set December 9 as the deadline for Center job applications. Board member Kathy Bernard reported that there has been great student response to the job opportunities and that the Board now has more applications than available.

Miss Bernard also reported that the Bookstore will begin moving to the Center December 13. The old Bookstore will be in operation until January 15, when the change will be completed.

Board member Art DesJardins reported to the Board on possibilities for use of the terrace area on the roof on the Center. Because the Center is located within three blocks of the GW Hospital, he reported, District noise laws will limit the use of loud speakers and amplifiers on the terrace.

Des Jardins pointed out that the terrace would be "a perfect place for a demonstration since it's two floors up and right across from Rice Hall," but warned that the legal limitations must be taken into consideration.

Another problem in the formation of the terrace policy - the relocation of activities in the event of bad weather - will be incorporated into a formal policy on use of the Center for rallies and demonstrations, Board Chairman John Williams reported.

The Board also passed a motion to provide a student check cashing service in the Center during the week and on weekends. The service will use the credit books from the Cashiers Office and a $.10 service charge will be levied.

Ed. Policy Meets On Orientation

A subcommittee of the Educational Policy Committee of the University Senate is reviewing the program for freshman orientation and summer advanced registration. The subcommittee is seeking the advice of interested students, faculty, and administrators. An open meeting will be held on Thursday, December 11, at 1 p.m. in the Faculty Conference Room (Library, 6th floor) to hear suggestions.

Jews and Arabs

Gen. Davis Speaks

JEWS SHOULD BE "the first to rally to the support of the Palestinians," asserted Dr. John Davis, former Commanding General of the UN War and Relief Agencies, when he spoke to a crowd of 40 at Woodhull House last Nov. 24.

Davis, who now heads the American Near East Refugees' Aid, explained that Israel should realize that "the Arabs see the Palestinians as having been driven out of their homes, having had their land seized, and then witnessing the creation of a new state from their land. This has resulted in the problem that today 2 1/2 million Palestinians are a people without a home."

Davis admitted, however, that the Jews could not "rally to the support" of the Palestinians "without returning the state to them." He implied that the Arabs are not basically hostile to the Jews. It is the state they object to.

If there is to be peace, Davis concluded, there will have to be changes in Israel. "Perhaps," he suggested, "the name should revert back to 'Palestine' with a unification of people."

Describing the situation today, Davis stated that the principle force changing the situation has been Palestinian commando raids. "The commandos," he noted, "have had the most effect on the Arab nations themselves, rather than on Israel. The have made the Arabs aware of their strength and stability in the war."

Reviewing the history of the Near Eastern conflict, Davis claimed that some 8,000 Palestinians were exiled by the Jews when Israel acquired statehood. "The Palestinians were exiled because they were not Jews," he maintained. "The concept of a Jewish State means selectiveness."

Turning to the United States, Davis said that for us to "initiate peace" we must change our Near East policy. This, he felt, is unlikely because Zionists here "will not allow the White House to change its views on the crises and their diehard policies may lead to the ultimate destruction of Israel."

Debate Team Seeded Third

VICTORY CAME again to the GW Varsity Debate Team last weekend, as John Warner and Jim Swartz reached the quarterfinal round of Wake Forest's Dixie Classic Debate Tournament in Winston-Salem, N.C.

Out of 60 teams present, the Colonials were seeded third at the end of the preliminary rounds. The team rolled up an overall record of 8-2, defeating Northern Iowa, Washington and Lee, Brown, University of Virginia, Wake Forest, Georgia (twice) and Florida.

Blacks, Military and GW

UNTIL BROKEN this week (see story, page 3) by a statement refusing to "tolerate any efforts of tokenism," only silence had echoed from the camp of the Black Students Union this fall. At Mobilization and Moratorium events and when the issue of the Three Sisters Bridge was raised, whites spoke about institutional racism and how the system exploited and oppressed blacks. The blacks remained conspicuously absent from these activities and debates. The silence of the BSU may have given solace to some, thinking that black GW students had forgotten others remaining in the ghetto and were satisfied with their university's relationship with the black community. The content and tone of this week's statement, however, make it clear that this impression is totally false.

Contrary to the somewhat selfish desires of some, the American University today cannot maintain its traditional posture as an isolated ivory tower aloof from the problems of society. The problems are too immense and need the resources of the university in order to be solved. The university must help, if not be at the forefront of the movement, to meet the challenges of modern society. If these challenges are not met, the ranks of the revolutionaries are sure to grow and justifiably so.

Meanwhile, where does GW stand?

Its administration points to the University's association with the nation's war colleges in Newport, Rhode Island and Fort McNair, Washington, as an example of the University responding to a need of society. By extending itself to Newport, the University feels that it is exerting a civilian influence on the military mind; military leaders are learning from GW professors that diplomatic problems are not best resolved by military means.

If the University can extend itself the 400 odd miles to Newport to provide an educational service, it should be able to provide this same service to people just a few blocks away - people whose success in life is automatically limited by their lack of education. More than 200 upper echelon military officers are enrolled in GW's master's degree program at Newport, and another 76 attend GW classes at Fort McNair, while only about 65 students are able to participate in GW's Educational Opportunity Program. This program not only directly benefits its participants, but the other members of the University community who come in contact with them.

This comparison between GW's service to the military and the Washington community might be construed to be a matter of priorities. Is the need more critical for GW to give a master's degree to naval officers or to offer an educational opportunity to those who have been denied access to higher education and have suffered from an inferior secondary school education?

Both civilian control of the military and the plight of the blacks are critical problems facing American society today. GW is going out of its way, doing much more than most institutions to facilitate the military. It has blatantly violated its concept of strict political neutrality. An established undertaking to improve the military is certainly a show of support for the status quo in this day and age when revolution is actively preached on the streets. In contrast to this extended position, GW's efforts to ameliorate the plight of the urban ghetto dweller can only be described as meager.

We cannot wait until some members of the University community become so frustrated and some members of the larger Washington community so angered that some sort of confrontation seems inevitable. The climate of fear, in the midst of which the original EOP proposal was considered last spring, must not be created again. The University must take initiative without outside coercion.

Letters to the Editor

The Art of Nyro

ART IS a form of personal expression. It is a conveyance of emotion; a transmission of energy from the artist to the receiver.

In the field of contemporary music today, there are many authentic artists. Aroused by the unheralded talents of various Jazz and Blues performers, numerous new artists are making legitimate contributions in the field of Folk and Rock music.

In Bob Galano's review of the Laura Nyro concert, (Hatchet, Nov. 24, 1969) he totally missed the essence of a truly gifted artist. His previously expressed opinion of Laura Nyro's latest album, "New York Tendaberry," indicated his lack of insight concerning Miss Nyro's work. This album, which Mr. Galano insensitively refers to as a "disaster," is a true representation of the artist's musical interpretation of her own emotions, and a more accurate recording of her voice and ideas than her previous two releases.

Apparently Mr. Galano cannot cope with the growth of Laura Nyro, just as many people could not cope with the growth and change of Coltrane and Dylan. Laura Nyro's live performance, like her latest album, is a complete exhibition of an individual, singing and playing the beautiful music which she has written and arranged.

Mr. Galano would probably have preferred structured, recognizable sounds; better yet, a perfect duplication of Miss Nyro's first two albums without a single deviation.

Taste is a personal thing, and can be helpful, but when an artist must draw criticism for improvising, it is unjust. Laura Nyro's voice is an instrument in itself. She is a beautifully real person (maybe that is what scares Mr. G.) who is stoned on life. One hundred albums in the studio could never capture the totally emotional experience of one live performance, and neither could Bob Galano.

THANK YOU for complying with a request not to take pictures.

Thank you for not using the pictures like you promised to me and my father, after you took them anyway.

I just want to say that procedural rules are the most important thing in the world. Nothing could be more precious to a mother. It is good that you and others like you look at things in the right perspective and set your values accordingly. Holy status quo, blessed masturbation. The monster is the nation.

Sociology Mess

THE SOCIOLOGY Department is a sorry mess. Most of the courses are irrelevant, unrelated, and uninteresting.

There is definite lack of background material. Social Theory, the only general preparatory course, is offered as a last semester cram course. Current emphasis is much too large to be taught as a seminar (although some professors never stop trying) and Research Methods, the other required course, is poorly taught.

The classes, in general, are much too large. "Professors always begin first day of classes with the statement: 'We can't do what I had planned on, since I never expected this many students.' " Some professors - Stephens, Cisin, and Tropea especially - are helpful outside of class.

Perhaps the greatest advantage in majoring in sociology is "the number of courses it allows you to take outside of the major."

'Fast Buck'

ALREADY, many students have fallen victim to those in the business community who look upon "Joe College" as the symbol of the "fast buck."

I am referring to the enormous amounts of illicit advertising and in general, false representations by various concerns that are being made to students on this campus.

For example, a charter flight to Bermuda was advertised - at super savings - a once in a lifetime deal. The only hangup was, and still is, that this company has not yet chartered a plane. Students stand either to lose their money or have their vacation plans ruined. Insurance companies, advertising various packages, with emphasis on life insurance, have not only sold these phony policies to unknowing students, but have unrelentingly pestered those who do not cave in immediately.

At the last Student Assembly meeting, this problem was brought forth for discussion. It was decided that a small but viable "watchdog" committee be formed to investigate pending and future discrepancies.

Students should be outraged at these insults to their intelligence and to the apparent dishonesty that is being displayed by these modern-day Al Capones. So - Students Beware - these misrepresentations come in all shapes and sizes, from handsome salesmen to attractive newspaper ads and bulletin board posters.

I would urge anyone who comes directly or indirectly in contact with this problem on campus, to contact me or Neil Portnow at 676-6558, or to come to the Student Assembly office located in the Student Union Annex. You will be doing a service to yourself and the entire University community.

Olympic War Games

WE WERE submerged in reveries about the Mets, the Knicks, the Rangers and their meaning to New Yorkers, when my friend Donnie laughingly said that we ought to make war a game, or a tournament, like the Olympics or the World Cup.

At first the idea seemed absurd and ludicrous. Then I realized that it was neither more absurd nor more ludicrous than war itself. So, I have constructed the IWL - International War League.

Superpowers and almost superpowers (U.S., U.S.R., China, U.K., France, W. Germany, and Japan) comprise the "Sophisticated Division." Each will confront every other (division member) diplomatically - with a military threat always implicit - a minimum of once and a maximum of twice every three years. Weapons will be ignorance, hate, instability and irrationality - all as accumulated by mankind for ten thousand years.

On the first day of the fourth year the division champion will be decided by calculating the ratio of defense expenditures over domestic non-defense expenditures for the first year (of the tournament) as against the same figures (projected) for the fourth year, then multiplying the ratio by the dividend of a government's repression of its own people during the first three years divided by the amount of hate that government has promoted during those years. Mathematically, the formula is:

$$(\text{Year 1}) \frac{\text{def. exp.}}{\text{nondef. exp.}}$$

$$(\text{Year 4}) \frac{\text{def. exp.}}{\text{nondef. exp.}} \times$$

$$\frac{\text{repression}}{\text{hate}}$$

The "Stubbornly Malleable Division" will consist of the approximately thirty "somewhat developed" countries which could be vehicles for their peoples' progress.

Sometimes instead of fighting these nations will have needless arms races. Other times they will fight among themselves - often for such things as five miles of useless desert or the inability to live next to a nation that has the temerity to mind its own business.

Occasionally a country will fight within itself, and while two rival armies kill, rival governments will claim that although their soldiers are pulling the triggers the other government is causing the deaths.

This division's winner is determined by multiplying a nation's casualty total by the total defense expenditures and then multiplying that product by the amount of money which scientists (on leave from various superpowers) say is needed to solve the nation's two worst problems. Mathematically, the formula is:

$$\text{casualties} \times \text{defense exp.} \times \text{needed money} = ?$$

The "Groping Division" will consist of all the world's emerging nations. They will not fight each other as much as they will scream at the superpowers and have internal coups. The winner here will be determined by dividing the defense expenditures by the nondefense spending, multiplying the dividend by the total amount of foreign aid received, and multiplying that product by the number of leaders killed or imprisoned for political reasons. Mathematically, the formula is:

$$\frac{\text{def. exp.}}{\text{nondef. exp.}} \times$$

$$\text{total foreign aid} \times$$

$$\text{leaders killed or imprisoned} = ?$$

As to locations, the "Sophisticates" will play their games in salons and dining halls with only small cliques involved, while the two other divisions will play in national stadiums with entire populations alternately concerned or uncaring.

The Super Fight, which determines the champion war maker of the world, is a battle between the Sophisticate champion (which always gets a berth here) and the other divisional champion which has demonstrated the most hatred for the new Sophisticate champ during the tourney's first three years. Sophisticate champ chooses the weapons, but the other champ chooses the terrain, type of warfare, and social milieu.

As to who wins the Super Fight, who knows? It can go on interminably. Meantime, the tournament will start every four years without fail, and for those sports fans who worry about having nothing to watch for a few months during the fourth year, an exhibition season is planned.

Washington: No. 290

DESPITE THE OBVIOUS fact that the new draft lottery system, to be implemented this coming January, is somewhat more equitable than the old way of selecting draftees, it still appears slightly ludicrous that an individual's entire future can be determined by the picking of a number out of a hat. It would seem that this nation with its supposed unsurpassed and unlimited technology could come up with a far better method of choosing the members of its armed forces.

The ludicrousness of it all notwithstanding, the lottery system is here and undoubtedly will affect most male college students.

Now, the problem is to try to understand how the lottery will work. In itself, this is no easy task because there exist many conflicting interpretations of the system's workings.

I submit the description below of the lottery in the hope that it will answer some of the basic questions that give students nightmares. In the example, I have borrowed rather extensively from the description that appeared in David Rosenbaum's article in the New York Times on Monday, December 1, 1969.

Let's make our example George Washington. His birthday is on February 22nd, which makes him no. 290 in the lottery. Let's assume that George is an undergraduate with a student deferment. Now as long as George keeps his student deferment, he will, as in the past, not be drafted. If George's draft board reaches no. 290 while he has a deferment, George still cannot be called.

(For the record, it should be pointed out that no. 290 in all likelihood will never be called which in itself raises some curious questions. If George was safe from the draft he never would have enlisted and thus never would have served in the Revolution and accordingly never would have become Father of our Country. Countries without fathers probably never would become involved in Vietnam in the first place and thus without Vietnam, the lottery would probably be unnecessary.)

In future lotteries, other men with the birthday, February 22, will receive other numbers. But this does not affect our George - he will always retain his no. 290. When George loses his deferment, he will be considered with all other men with no. 290. If however, no. 290 has already been called, George will be drafted immediately. If his number has not been called, George will have one full year of eligibility when he can be called. After that only a declaration of war could get George into a uniform.

The lottery does not affect deferments in any way. It still will be possible to teach, for example, and escape the draft altogether.

From all this, it is apparent that this country requires far more serious draft reform than this newly adopted lottery system. Unfortunately, it is unlikely that this kind of reform will come about until this nation accepts the long overdue fact that we can no longer serve as the world's policeman. It seems to me that the time for this reform should have come some years ago.

Looking at Decisions

NEIL PORTNOW said the administration came through in the end. He was referring to the last minute decision to let demonstrators sleep in various University buildings during the Mobilization against the War. Now that two weeks have gone by, we should reconsider the University's actions on that weekend because they raise important questions about how decisions are made at GW.

President Elliott said that the change in policy was made for purely humanitarian reasons. This is probably true, though a cautious desire to avoid a confrontation also figured in. The question that must be asked, however, is why did the University wait until the weekend to change its policy? The crisis nature of the housing situation was clear before the demonstrators got to Washington.

The reason for the administration's seeming reversal of policy, is not that the University was playing a tight and careful game of pleasing both the students who were supporting the Mobilization and a conservative influence which did not want the University to do anything to support or aid the Mobilization. The University's insistence on a "non-political" stance can thus be seen as a weapon against the student left, and also against the University right.

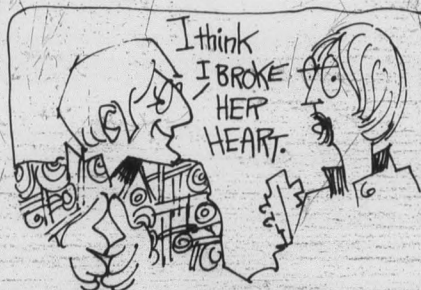

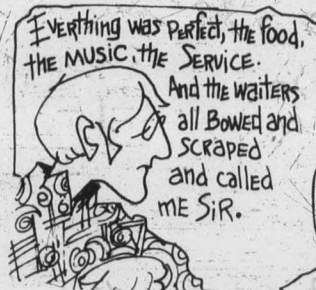

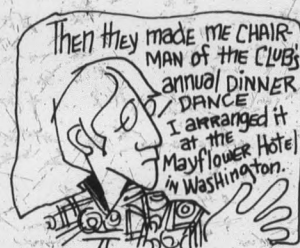

Students, of course, know very little about the University right. We cannot even be sure of its existence except by deduction. Very simply, if we do not postulate its existence, there is no other way to explain the administration's behavior.

We do not know whether the right is a student force (which seems unlikely) or a faculty, alumni, or trustee influence. We do not know who speaks for it, what it wants, or how it works. Most important, we do not know how to gauge its influence, how to answer its arguments or how to decrease its influence.

The ignorance about the University right is one of the major reasons for the powerlessness of the student left. Furthermore, the Administration maintains this ignorance by keeping its decision making process closed to students, so that the student left cannot know what pressures and forces oppose it.

The administration, by keeping its real reasons quiet, seeks to avoid the possibility of realistic criticism of its policies. While privacy may give the Administration more room to maneuver, it is directly contrary to the interest of the entire University to have an open and accessible decision-making process. The administration should not need room for maneuver, because they are not being paid to deceive or mislead the University community.

GW has the responsibility to open the decision making councils to public scrutiny and to declare openly what influences and pressures are affecting its policy. That is the only way that the administration can counter the serious charge that it only serves to protect the ruling interests of the society. If it does not choose to expose itself to public scrutiny, its silence stands as only more evidence that this charge is actually true.

If your class group or association is planning a party, call The Mayflower's Larry Wiesinger at DI-7-3000 and talk about it. You're sure to be pleased with the results, because we've had lots of practice at impressing people.

Nixon Ignores Promise To Provide Education Funds

WASHINGTON — (CPS) — During the 1968 campaign, President Nixon said, "When we talk about cutting the expense of government - either federal, state or local - the one area we can't short-change is education. Education is the one area in which we must keep doing everything that is necessary to help achieve the American Dream."

Today, nine months after assuming office, Nixon has yet to send his education proposals to Congress or indicate where education stands on his list of priorities, and some legislators and educators are getting impatient.

"Nary a word about education" was contained in the administration's message to Congress last month on its legislative priorities, observed Rep. Ogden Reid (R-N.Y.). Reid urged the President to "promptly forward to Congress a comprehensive program dealing with the educational needs of the country."

George Fischer, president of the National Education Association (NEA), which acts as a lobby group for federal aid to education, commented before the House General Subcommittee: "The Nixon rhetoric on education is the same as his promise to end the Vietnam War. I don't blame the President for either problem - he inherited both - but I am startled and chagrined by his lack of convincing proposals to solve these problems."

The administration is reportedly preparing an education message to be forwarded to Congress soon, but expectations are that it will focus on elementary and secondary education rather than higher education.

The reason for this is said to be that the White House, wishing to win the battle against inflation, is unwilling to expand its aid to education in general, and post-secondary education considered less vital than education in grades 1-12 - must therefore receive less financial emphasis.

In the absence of any proposals from the administration, however, Rep. Edith Green (D-Ore.), chairman of the House Special Subcommittee on Education, has announced her committee will not wait for Nixon's message, but will open hearings this month on the wide range of recommendations that have been made to solve higher education's financial problems.

Bills introduced this session include the following:

* A comprehensive community college bill, which would authorize grants to the states for planning, construction and operation of community colleges.

* A bill that would reimburse working college students for tax payments.

Rep. Green is planning to introduce an "omnibus" education bill that would, if it were passed, set federal education priorities for the next five years. The bill is expected to include a long-term student loan bank and an institutional grants program. A loan bank would lend students money to pay for college expenses. After graduation, they would have 30 or 40 years to repay the money.

If Congress made long-term loans available to students, the pressure on states to provide aid to higher education would be lessened, but students, who could conceivably incur debts of up to $20,000 by taking advantage of the loans, might be wary of taking them out.

TWA put a price on your head that even your parents might agree to pay.

We're out to get you home for the Holidays. Fast.

Which is something that your parents will probably enjoy too.

Something else they'll enjoy is our fares for students. (Students, that is, who are between the ages of 12 and 21 and who have TWA's Youth Card.) On a standby basis, you'll get 40% off regular coach fares.

Which doesn't mean you'll be flying second class or anything like that.

You still get all the great food and TWA features like movies and stereo music.* But it won't cost you like it does everyone else.

And TWA flies to nearly all the major cities in the U.S., plus we have a special youth fare to Hawaii.

With all that going for you, there's only one excuse for not going home for the holidays.

Getting your hair cut.

GASP Wins First Victory In Bus Air Pollution Fight

by Glenn Ritt
Hatchet Staff Writer

THE GREATER Washington Alliance to Stop Pollution (GASP), a GW Law School project, won a major victory Friday in its fight against air pollution caused by the District's 17 bus companies.

The D.C. Transit Commission set January 8 for a pre-conference hearing between members of GASP and the city's bus companies. The Commission dismissed arguments introduced by the major transit companies who had answered an August 21 suit by GASP.

GASP vice-president John Winder, now Executive Director of the Metropolitan Washington Coalition for Clean Air, called the Commission's order a "substantial victory for our forces."

The pre-conference hearing will permit discussion of pollution issues and have witnesses called to cite evidence of air pollution in the city. A date will then be announced for the formal hearings.

GASP is asking the Transit Commission to effect regulations to guarantee clean air in the District. The original suit, filed against the 17 bus companies, including D.C. Transit, AB&W, WMA Transit, and Grey Line, Inc., cited violations of formal Transit Commission regulations on air pollution.

GASP intends to ask for improvements in the present Transit company practices which are "economically and technically feasible." Winder cited better maintenance, the addition of catalytic mufflers, better fuels, new inspection systems, operator training courses and daily inspections as feasible improvements within the bus companies' capacities.

The law school's anti-pollution organization began last spring when professor Arthur Brown assigned 61 students a project: sue District transit companies for violating area pollution regulations.

After completing the course, eight students decided to continue the original project and incorporated under D.C. law as a non-profit organization. On August 21, they proceeded officially by suing the 17 companies.

Friday's court order favoring GASP, as well as the recent completion of a television documentary on air pollution, scheduled for early January on NBC, gives the organization momentum for effecting their immediate legal goals.

Mr. Winder pointed out that GASP is a unique type of operation. It practices environmental law, applying it to better conditions in the metropolitan area.

'Revolution' Topic at YSA Conference Here

"REVOLUTIONARY ANALYSIS and Strategy Today" will be the general topic of discussion at an educational conference sponsored by the D.C. Chapter of the Young Socialist Alliance here at GW on December 5, 6, and 7.

The antiwar movement, women's liberation, "black struggle," the Near East crisis, and "Socialist strategy" will be subjects included in the discussion.

Among the speakers scheduled are Peter Camejo, a Boston organizer of the Socialist Workers Party, who led mass demonstrations while a student at Berkeley; Peter Buch, author of numerous works on the Near East; and Anis Kassim of GW's Organization of Arab Students. Buch and Kassim will share the platform Saturday for a panel on the Palestinian commando struggle against Israel.

George Novak, a Marxist lecturer and writer of long standing, will speak on "The Science of Revolution and the Art of Making Them." Tony Thomas, a National Field Secretary for the Young Socialist Alliance, and Linda Jenness, recent Socialist Workers Party candidate for mayor of Atlanta, will also participate.

The conference here will be one of many such events planned for major cities across the country in the next weeks, according to a YSA statement.

Homecoming Queen — from p. 1 Voting Ends Friday

Balloting in the Homecoming Queen contest will continue through tomorrow in front of the Student Union for the following candidates.

'Woodstock Nation'

Hedonism and Dirty Words

by Mark Olshaker

Cultural Affairs Editor
"Woodstock Nation," by Abbie Hoffman. Published by Vintage. 153 pages. Illustrated. $2.95.

WE ARE NOT the people our parents warned us against, but Abbie Hoffman is, or at least should be. Apparently buoyed by his previous literary accomplishments, "Revolution for the Hell of It" and "Fuck the System," Hoffman took five days out from his busy schedule, between the Woodstock festival and the Chicago conspiracy trial, to spasmodically set down his nihilistic philosophy.

I cannot help but draw an analogy between the life which Hoffman advocates and what was characteristic of the wave of Frankie Avalon-Annette Funicello beach party movies of the middle 1960's. Both life styles are hedonistic, apathetic to anything not directly related to self and counter-productive to the needs of any society, be they the establishment's ("Pig Nation," as Hoffman calls it) or Hoffman's ("Woodstock Nation"). The difference is that the beach crowd thrills to Mr. Avalon's mediocre singing, and Hoffman thrills in writing "fuck" in his books under the guise of free expression.

The pity of the whole thing is that Hoffman is generally irresponsible in philosophy (as he implies himself throughout "Woodstock Nation"), but he occasionally demonstrates great sensitivity to the problems he normally circumvents. In the chapter "Death to the Pigs Who Invade Our Lands," Hoffman speaks from personal experience about a medical survey taken among the poor of Mississippi:

"...once in Mississippi we were taking a medical survey door-to-door and I remember the mothers would all say their children were 'doin' jus fine' and I'd look down and see twelve-year-old black kids with teeth totally rotted away - they thought that was 'normal' health. The woman would ask if you'd like something to drink and you knew it would be ice water and that white people up North would call that 'soul' but you called it poverty."

If Hoffman is capable of this, why must he also subject us to a three page essay on how to steal successfully for fun and profit? The problem is that once he has fed us his revolutionary baby talk, we have already relegated him to the lunatic fringe and are unwilling to concede that once in a while there is more to Hoffman than the rapidly-aging hippie he seems to be.

The book itself is uneven in style, tempo, voice and credibility, but a surprisingly readable creation if Hoffman was as zonked as he claimed to be during the five days he wrote it. The readers who will not take this book seriously, and I hope they are in the majority, may amuse themselves by keeping count of how many times Hoffman contradicts himself on whether he does or does not want a revolution, whether he believes in any kind of law, or whether he even cares about anything.

Hopefully, those who read "Woodstock Nation" will take it for what it is worth, the stream of consciousness ramblings of a self-styled non-leader. If there is to be a revolution, cultural or otherwise, Abbie Hoffman and Jerry Rubin will not be in its vanguard. That, fortunately, will be left to those who at least possess a conception of their own aims and desires.

As far as I can see, the only reason "Woodstock Nation" ever came to be written is because a publisher wanted to make a fast buck. So they commissioned the "weird yippie commie pervert" to write down all his dirty words and anti-social thoughts to sell to all his devoted followers for $2.95. But in accordance with Hoffman's philosophy of life, the upper left hand corner of the back cover of the book bears the phrase, "Steal This Book." If Vintage is willing to go that far, or stoop that low if you will, I suggest you do just that. Next time you happen to see a copy of "Woodstock Nation," grab it. Right on!

Subotnick Appears

MORTON SUBOTNICK, electronic music composer, will appear at the Smithsonian Institute this weekend. Subotnick will present a new work entitled "Misfortunes of the Mortals."

It's 'Led Zepplin' Time Again, Folks

by John Feiten

Cultural Staff Writer

WELL, FOLKS, it's "Led Zepplin" time again. Dust off your strobe lights, put on your most psychedelic threads, put up those freaky posters, light that incense, and sit back and listen to Jimmy Page strangle his guitar.

"Led Zepplin" is the rock generation's Muzak. (I think somebody else said that first, but what the hell). One puts on this record as kind of a release from the obligation of actually listening to something. The album would make wonderful background music during a party when everybody's really wiped out and maybe a little horny and all that's needed is some nice, loud, electric cacophony to make everyone realize their adolescent physical drives.

You can't really listen to it because if you do, if you really pay attention to what's going down, you will discover it's only four little boys banging on pots and pans, seeing who can make the most noise.

At any rate, my main objection to "Led Zepplin" and other acid-rock groups such as "Ten Years After," "Rhinosceros," and "Iron Butterfly" is that they are not making any contribution to music. They are not leading other musicians into new areas of creativity. I suppose that this is the mark of a great artist. The Beatles, Dylan, John Mayall, the Stones, the Airplane and others are constantly improvising with their sound, and as a result of these transformations, they are able to create new musical forms.

That many of the acid-rock groups are able to draw huge audiences and command large fees for their performances says something about the people who go to their concerts. The thing that draws all these folks in is the show involved, the spectacle. I mean what chick who maybe has just been introduced into the "hippie sub-culture" could resist someone like Robert Plant, all sullen and freaky and dressed in leather and everything. It's the SCENE. It's get high, dress flashy, wear beads, and watch Jimmy Page or Alvin Lee wiggle their respective bodies around for a couple of hours. How many people go to see a group because they are vitally interested in the music the band plays? Not a whole lot, I imagine. They go because they heard the group's single played on the "Cousin Bruce Show," and "Rolling Stone" did an article about the lead singer, or maybe because their best friend who's really hip about music (he took sousaphone when he was 12) thinks that they are really heavy.

Every once in a while I love to go to the type of concert where maybe the band isn't so hot but it's loud and everyone's sweating because they're all dancing like crazy, and you're stoned and drunk on Ripple, and your date is looking foxy as hell, and the drum player just went zoo, and...and, isn't it all too cosmic??

Moog Moods and the Zodiac

by Bob Galano

Asst. Cultural Affairs Editor

"We were born at a given moment, in a given place, and, like vintage years of wine we have the qualities of the year and the season in which we were born. Astrology does not lay claim to anything more."

—C. G. Jung

A & M RECORDS, acknowledging "the birth of a new Renaissance among people everywhere especially among those people who have opened their minds to see beyond the ordinary and recognize the true relationship between man and the Universe," according to the liner notes, have released a new series of 12 discs (SP 4211 through 4222) entitled "Signs of the Zodiac," one record for each sign.

The music for the 12 albums was composed and realized on the electronic Moog synthesizer by Mort Garson. It's fun to listen to, but it's difficult to tell the difference between the Moog moods. Thus, the rather banal narration which tells you what the music means is the only manner to tell the Aquarius disc from the Pisces disc, vice versa and etcetera.

Love, one of the greater aspects of astrology - usually the biggest chapters in the $75 horoscope books - is not handled well at all. As it stands in the album, the question of Love is, indeed, a question. A male narrator speaks to "the young men" to tell them which "princess" of their sign or some other sign is best for them. Then a female narrator takes over to have a little talk with the girls. Admittedly, having 24 discs, one each for males and females, would make problems for production and marketing, though perhaps not too much more than having to produce and market 12.

Following all the talking, there's music - (should one assume it to be bisexual since they only play it once?) - music-to-fall-in-love-with which sounds exactly like music-to-fall-gently-asleep-by. The whole Love bit also makes one wonder if homosexuals can fall in love...or maybe they're not affected by astrology. But then again, maybe that's why so many of our creative geniuses seem to be homosexual - the heterosexuals are too busy loving to worry about anything else...according to the album's interpretation of the stars, anyway.

Further notations on the liner explain that the reason for growing interest in astrology stems from each man's search for an instant of time that he can call his. In itself, that shows insight and is, perhaps, a valid observation. To extend the point of the moment-in-time they include a moon chart from 1919 to 1960 to let you "discover" the location of the moon on your birth date. This too is fine. But then comes that script again. Written and directed by Jacques Wilson, the narration is as unspecific and as vastly general as Margaret Mead's stirring generalization that all men are basically good. The inherent individuality is lost in the obscurity.

With the new waves of interest, the idea behind the discs is a good one. But most of what astrologers tell us astrology stands for is misinterpreted or merely ignored by the creators of "Sign of the Zodiac."

It is unfortunate that a more refined and defined product could not have been developed. But that would have meant spending more money on the deal and consequently less profit and, hell, maybe that's what they're trying to tell us.

Student Recital

THE FIRST of this semester's student recitals will be presented by the Music Department on Friday, Dec. 5 at 4 p.m. in building FF. The recital is free and is open to the public.

Additional programs have been scheduled for 8 p.m. Friday, Dec. 12 and Wednesday, Dec. 17 at the Arts Club Auditorium which is located at 2017 Eye Street, NW.

BSU Tops DTD In Key Intramural Tilt

by Barry Wenig

INTRAMURAL BASKETBALL resumes this week after the Thanksgiving vacation with action in all three leagues.

Results before Thanksgiving in Sunday "A" League saw Delta Tau Delta, lead by Larry Zembrak's 22 points, defeat the Law School 60-55, and then drop their second game to a powerful Black Student Union team 50-43. Garland Pinkston was the top scorer in that game with 19 while Zembrak was high for the Deltas with 15 points.

Men's Rec. shares first place as a result of a forfeit victory over Last Resort and a victory over Tennis Team 43-29. The Law School evened their record with a 51-30 win over the Last Resort.

Other action saw the Reasonable Men beat Health Care 40-38; Pete's Team 44, Sigma Chi 38, and Phi Sigma Delta 53, IDGAF 41.

The Sunday "B" League sports six teams with a 2 and 0 record sharing first place. The Koshier Dixiecrats, behind the 18 and 16 point scoring of Glenn Olsen and Harvey Blumenthal, breezed past the Celtics 47-28. TEP, lead by Silverman's 17 point performance, just got by Mike and Spike 41-40. J. Driscoll fired in 16 points to help Sigma Nu crush TKE 40-27. The Lettermen, on the strength of Rick Callahan, defeated Sigma Chi 34-26.

Other games featured The evening their record with a 36-24 romp over Phi Sigma Delta. DTD easily got by GWU Caps 42-26. In two low scoring games, it was IDGAF 24, Kappa Sig 16 and Physical Plant Engineers 22, SAE 16. The final game showed the Chicago Cops defeating Calhoun Hall 46-35.

The largest league, Saturday "B", had only nine games played this past week. The Chicago Cops, behind Bergknoff's 10 points, just squeaked by SPE 25-23. The Team remained undefeated with a 36-26 victory over the Koshier Dixiecrats. In a defensive struggle the Downtown Drunks defeated the Uptown Drunks 11-10.

Med Fr. II rolled past Phi Sigma Delta 38-29, DTD crushed Med Fr. III 44-18, Adams breezed by SX 32-25, and the Welling Cockroaches bombed the SAE pledges 43-28. Action also saw Med IV forfeiting to Welling Stars and Med Fr. I forfeiting to Axis Bold Love.

Admission to all home basketball games is free with a GW I.D. Student seats are on the East side of the gym and under the South basket, according to athletic director Bob Faris. In addition, seats in the South grandstand are available if all others are filled.

All Colonial basketball games, home and away, are broadcast over WRGW (680 kilocycles) which can be received in any GW dorm as well as the Student Union. Tim Ashwell and Tim Dirks doing the play-by-play this season.

Buses for the VMI game will leave from Thurston beginning at 12:30 p.m. on Saturday. The last bus leaves at 2:00 p.m.

Maryland Breezes Past Buff, 92-71

THE UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND behind strong rebounding and excellent second half shooting coasted by the Colonials 92-71 last night at Fort Myer. After two home games, GW is still looking for its first win.

The Colonials entered the second half trailing by a 41-33 margin, and quickly fell behind 53-41 after only four minutes of play, as the Buff were unable to generate any resemblance of an offensive threat. The Colonial guards could not effectively move the ball into the front court as Ronnie Nunn and Mike Tallent unsuccessfully forced their shots up from great distances. The Maryland defense led by 6-5 Sparky Still and 6-6 Ron Horst played inspired second half ball as the Terrapins dominated both the offensive and defensive boards. Senior forward Horst led Maryland in rebounds with 12, while managing 18 points mainly on layups in the second half.

The Buff led throughout most of the first half, as the offense, led by Lenny Baltimore and Harold Rhyne, played aggressive ball. However, the Colonials began forcing their shots and missing easy lay-ups, and a basket by "lazy" Will Hetzel with 4:06 remaining put the Terrapins ahead 35-33. From then on, GW was forced to play catch up ball.

The Maryland offense led by the fine shooting of guards Micky Wiles and Tom Milroy, blistered the nets with an amazing 67% field goal percentage during the second half. Wiles threw an 18 points, while Milroy was high scorer with 23. The Colonial defense seemed at times almost nonexistent as the Terps penetrated almost at will during most of the second half. The guards had no problem moving the ball into the front court, as Still, Horst, and Hetzel threw in easy lay-ups.

Hetzel, Maryland's top scorer last season, in a reserve role this year scored eight points while grabbing six rebounds during his 15 minutes of playing time. Coach Lefty Driesell, after calling Hetzel one of the two laziest ball players he'd ever coached, benched him this season for his lack of aggressiveness.

Mike Tallent was the Colonials high scorer with 23 points. He was followed by Lenny Baltimore who had 12 points, and Ronnie Nunn who managed 10 points at the same time living up to his reputation as "the gun" in true form. Center Bill Knorr led the squad with 15 rebounds.

The Terps final field goal percentage was a most respectable 54.3% while the Colonials had a poor night from the floor managing a mediocre 37% field goal percentage. The Colonials however, edged Maryland in the rebounding category 41-39.

Maryland is now 2-0 for the season, while the Colonials are 0-2. GW's next game is against VMI, Saturday at 2 p.m. - the last home appearance until December 30.

INSPIRED PERFORMANCES by Harold Mathews, Joe Mosley and Randy Click were not quite enough last night, as the Colonial freshmen fell to Maryland by a score of 85-84. This followed their 104-96 loss to Fort Meyer on Monday.

Mathews showed why he was named all-city in Washington, as he hit five of nine from the field and six free throws, for 16 points. The big center led the team with 16 rebounds.

Mosley assisted his high school teammate with 15 points and the same number of rebounds, in what was an impressive performance.

Click scored nine straight GW points in the second half, finishing with a team high of 21 points.

Also impressive was forward Mike Battle. Battle added 12 points, eight of them coming in the important second half.

Rounding out the attack were guards Chris Lovett and Jack Eig, who helped the Buff with nine and 11 points respectively.

The Colonials jumped off to an early lead and increased it to an 11 point edge at the half. During this time, GW completely dominated the attack, with Mosley and Mathews leading the way.

Maryland finally pulled ahead by three, with barely one minute to play and then held onto the lead, which was narrowed to one.

Inexperience hurt the Colonials as they lost 104-96 to a more experienced Fort Meyer team on Monday, in the first game of the season.

They missed shots, including layups, were outrebounded, and were hurt by several ballhandling mistakes. Yet they showed signs of future stardom, which should be especially evident as the season progresses.

Highscorer for the baby Colonials was guard Randy Click. The six foot Kentuckian scored 26 points, finding the mark with half his shots and four of five free throws. Not only did he shoot well, but he hustled and handled the ball well.

Center Howard Mathews was phenomenal, hitting ten of 12 from the field and three of four from the charity stripe. The big Washingtonian also grabbed 13 rebounds.

Another standout was forward Mike Battle. The 6'7" forward made 19 points, hitting half of his shots. Even more impressive, however, were his 17 rebounds.

Though their shooting percentages were poor, forward Joe Mosley and guards Jack Eig and Chris Lovett played acceptably. Mosley made 16 rebounds, to make up in part for his one for 11 from the field. Eig moved the ball well, as did Lovett.

LENNY BALTIMORE seemed to have trouble locating the basketball last night against Maryland at Fort Myer. In the contest, the Terrapins easily defeated the Colonials 92-71, and handed GW its second straight loss of the season.

Baltimore Spoils Buff Opener; Bees Provide Unexpected Sting

by Glen Totten
Hatchet Sports Writer

THE COLONIALS home opener last Monday night was most disappointing to GW fans, as the Baltimore University Bees slipped past the Colonials 88-85 before almost fifteen hundred GW basketball fans. It was an unfortunate setback for the Buff, who were expected by many to be an area powerhouse this season.

The score was tied eight times and was close throughout with neither team gaining more than an eight point advantage, at any time. The score saw-sawed for the first ten minutes of the first half until Baltimore got a 29-21 lead with 9:41 to go.

GW's sluggish offense stayed in the game mostly on the strength of Walt Szczerbiak's rebounding and Mike Tallent's erratic scoring surges. The closing minutes of the half saw the Buff come from behind and hustle to a 47-40 lead. Tallent led the attack hitting for seven points over a four minute stretch and ended the half with 18 points.

Though the half ended to GW's advantage, the Colonials hit on only 39 percent of their shots from the field and failed to move effectively on offense. Defensively, the Buff allowed Baltimore to score easily inside on lay-ups and tip-ins.

Southern Conference Opener Colonials Face VMI

by Ron Tipton
Sports Editor

VMI'S KEYDETS provide the opposition Saturday afternoon in a 2:00 p.m. hoop contest that is part of Winter Weekend festivities. This game marks the opening of Southern Conference competition for the Colonials, who posted a 7-5 record in conference play last year and finished third in the post-season tournament. The Keydets are not considered one of the conference powerhouses, having lost four starters from a team that won but five games last season. New head coach Mike Schuler is counting on Captain Jan Essenburg (7.2 ppg. last season) and returning letterman Jim Sefick to provide strength at forward.

It appears that VMI has very little backcourt strength now that All-Conference guard John Mitchell has graduated. GW guards Mike Tallent and Ronnie Nunn should completely dominate backcourt play, provided they decide to move the ball, something they did not do in the debacle against Baltimore.

Coach Dobbs will likely rotate forwards Harold Rhyne, Walt Szczerbiak, and Lenny Baltimore in an effort to stop Essenburg and Sefick. Baltimore was particularly outstanding in the second half against Baltimore, displaying an excellent shot and strong offensive rebounding.

The VMI-GW series dates back to 1912, with the Buff holding a commanding 35-15 lead. In fact, this is the best series record GW enjoys with any Southern Conference team.

The 1969-70 season will be the Colonial's last in the Southern Conference. Next year GW begins play as an independent with its primary goal being a spot in a post-season tournament. But that's ahead of us. Coach Dobbs and the team would like to leave the Conference on a winning note. Saturday's game could be a step in the right direction.

Baltimore star Bunny Wilson led his team's comeback in the opening minutes of the second half as the Bees outscored GW 20-13 over the first seven minutes. They erased the half-time edge, knotting the score at 60-60. The Buff stayed close, but BU continued to score almost at will from short range until they had run up an 87-80 lead with 54 seconds remaining in the game.

GW attempted a comeback as Ronnie Nunn hit on a lay-up and seconds later Lenny Baltimore made good on a three point play to close the gap to 87-85. After the Bees took time out, Ralph Barnett stole the inbound pass, but Tallent missed a 15 foot jumper with 26 seconds left. Harold Rhyne missed a lay-up ten seconds later. Tallent fouled BU's Varanko who sank the charity shot with three seconds to go to put the game beyond the Colonial's reach.

GW was unable to put together a cohesive offensive attack throughout the game. Buff guards Tallent and Nunn, both potentially explosive, hit on only 33 percent of their shots and could not engineer any sustained drives. Overall, the Colonials hit only 39 percent from the field as compared to Baltimore's 48. Defensively they allowed BU to work inside too much as evidenced by the fact that 14 of the Bees' 22 field goals in the second half were on lay-ups and tips.

There were some good individual performances however. Lenny Baltimore played a fine game scoring 15 points and grabbing five rebounds. Harold Rhyne had 12 points and nine rebounds. Walt Szczerbiak pulled in eleven rebounds and scored seven points though he played only 15 minutes.

Coach Dobbs seemed displeased by both his team's performance and the officiating. He was heard to yell, "Run the offense, will you!" It is too bad his guards failed to respond.

that are inherently bad, you change them."

Rep. Koch, who has been an outspoken critic of Vietnam policy for several years, said that he is "deeply distressed" by the growing trend toward "nihilism and anarchy." "You can't call someone nihilistic without sounding pretty silly, but that's what it is... I will march with the nihilists and anarchists, but I will not let them lead me."

In his opening remarks, Koch expressed his opposition to the statement of support for President Nixon which is currently being considered by the House. Koch said that the current resolution offered "the same kind of endorsement" as the Tonkin Gulf Resolution.

The New York Congressman further explained his disappointment with Administration policy. "We know that what takes place in Paris will be nothing," he said, "since our negotiators have resigned."

Concerning last month's demonstrations, YAF President Ed Grebow answered a question from Mazloff, by admitting that "If we could mobilize that many people, we would do so." Grebow went on to say that a YAF-sponsored march would "encourage national unity," as opposed to "peace demonstrators who are weakening the President's bargaining power."

Grebow directed a number of attacks at what he referred to as "the small handful of demonstrators," and advised that the war protestors "should be marching to tell it to Hanoi." He said that in all fairness, protestors should make the same demands of Hanoi which they make of the Nixon Administration.

As the discussion progressed, both the audience and panelists became more emotional. Members of the audience, including SDSers and YAF members, shouted insults at each other and at those on the stage.

During a period of questioning from the audience, Rep. Clark was asked to give his definition of patriotism. Referring to the incident at the Justice Department Nov. 15, Clark answered: "If I had been around when they took down the U.S. flag and put up the Viet Cong flag, they wouldn't have got it done. That's what I call patriotism."

Rep. Clark's response evoked immediate responses from both factions in the audience.

At another point, Clark told Mazloff that "you're the kind that has caused the destruction in this country," and asked

Mazloff what he has ever done "for this country."

After a short pause, Mazloff responded, almost with a tone of disbelief. "What have I done for this country? I've tried to stop this country from murdering people in Vietnam."

Responding to numerous cries of "What about Mylai?" Clark stated that Vietnamese civilians have only been killed accidentally in cases where they were involved in "strategic actions." The audience erupted into cries of "Bullshit."

Rep. Koch also had his troubles with the audience. During a discussion of forms of protest, he defended the right of a group of Quakers to recite the names of the war dead on the steps of the Capitol. When a member of the audience shouted "invasion of privacy" Koch shot back "No, it's not an invasion of privacy. Come back after you've passed first grade and I'll discuss it with you."

Student Assembly To Meet This Week

TONIGHT'S STUDENT ASSEMBLY meeting could provide some long-awaited excitement, as topics on the group's agenda include constitutional revision, the elimination of proxies, and the changing of Assembly elections to late spring rather than February. The meeting will be at 9 p.m. in Woodhull House, room C.

The Student Life Committee will also meet this week, in what will be its first and possibly last gathering, as a proposed joint Student Assembly-University Senate committee may abolish Student Life.

Topics to be discussed at the Friday meeting will include an amendment to the rules governing campus organizations and nominations for the national publication, "American Colleges Who's Who." And, of course, the proposed Joint Committee, which may receive final ratification next week by the Senate, will be discussed. The meeting will be held at 12:15 p.m. in room B of the Faculty Club.
